Truck hits house

Crash makes wild Yule eve

It was late Christmas night and Beebe Lasco of Antioch was tucked in for the night, thinking that all of the excitement of Christmas was only memories.

But about 2 a.m., Lasco's visions of sugar-plums were shaken when a truck, driven by another Antioch man, plummeted approximately 35 feet off of North Ave. and crashed into Lasco's porch, creating a crash that Lasco described as being "like a bomb."

The truck, owned by Denny's Painting Service of Antioch and reportedly driven by Denny Andre of Antioch, miraculously went between a tree and some gas pumps during its rough ride after leaving North Ave.

The truck then smashed into the side of a sun porch on the Lasco home, moving the porch five feet. The porch was reportedly full of antique furniture.

The truck then came to rest against the wall of the house, the same wall against which Lasco was sleeping on the inside of the house.

No charges have been filed or tickets issued in the case, the Lake County Sheriff's Dept. reported Monday.

Legal issues affect landfill consideration

by LINDA ADAMS

Annexation and rezoning of 60 acres of land proposed for expansion of the Antioch landfill could leave the village of Antioch open for a lawsuit, according to the village's legal counsel.

Village Atty. Ken Clark said that whether or not the village decided to okay the landfill, it could face a suit by Waste Management, Inc. if annexation and rezoning are approved prior to approval of the landfill operation.

Illinois state statutes require the proposed site to be in the village limits before the Antioch board can even begin to negotiate or hold public hearings on the landfill.

Approval of annexation and rezoning by the board, followed by rejection of the landfill special use following public hearings, would give the company a stronger foothold to sue the village to allow it to use the site for a landfill.

Antioch Mayor Ray Toft said hearings would be held before the planning commission to discuss the annexation. If the citizens have comments to make on the annexation, they should be present at the commission's meeting and also at the board meeting when the annexation vote is held.

Toft said Waste Management would probably not want the 60 acres to be annexed to the village unless the village were going to approve the proposed landfill.

During the Dec. 21 board meeting, Toft said, "The thing that bothers me is if everyone takes the stand that there's not going to be a disposal site in this area, where is our garbage going to go in Illinois?"

Trustee Claudette Skvarce said she did not (Continued on Page 6)

Man stabbed in motel; warrant sought

Jose Mendoza, 24, resident of the Sunset Motel, Antioch, was stabbed once in the left lower part of the back and once in the face at 3 a.m. on Wednesday, Dec. 23.

According to Lt. Tom Fisher of the Antioch Police Dept., his department is in the process of getting a warrant from the state's attorney's office for the person accused of the stabbing.

Fisher would not disclose the name of the accused pending issuance of the warrant.

Three other people with the victim have been identified as illegal aliens from Mexico.

Immigration authorities are expected to act immediately on their return to Mexico.

Mendoza, who is employed at the Squire Restaurant, was taken to St. Therese Hospital, Waukegan.

Good news in The News

Tree winner

Carol Hagi was the lucky gal who won that $1,000 Christmas tree put together by members of the Antioch Women's Club.

Lions baskets

Christmas was made happier for 55 needy area families by the ever benevolent Antioch Lions Club as members distributed their annual holiday food baskets.

As during Thanksgiving, Richard Kufalk and his team of helpers, Jim Fields, Tom Haley and Dave Heath, delivered the baskets filled with Christmas dinner and all the trimmings.

Best news

What can Antiochans look forward to during 1982? On the New Year's agenda is the start of the senior citizen housing project; the addition of Walter Koziol's industrial complex, bringing more jobs and income to the community; the possibility of the advent of a new shopping complex anchored by K-Mart.

But at the top of the list is the fact that they live in a great community minded area. Though no new news, it's the best news of all.

Christmas '81 his first with mom

by GLORIA DAVIS

This Christmas season was full of firsts for Joseph Coady, Twin Lakes, his wife Florence and their three children.

Coady, 37, was in contact with his natural mother and able to wish her a Merry Christmas for the first time in his life and his three children have gotten themselves a brand new grandmother.

Coady, born David Misura in Peoria, was adopted when he was two years old by Frank and Margaret Coady of Ivesdale, Ill., who legally changed his name to Joseph Coady. The Coadys raised Joe and another adopted son with love and care. He was content with the only parents he could remember until he was 13.

When in the inquisitive teens, he questioned his adoptive parents about his real heritage. They dissuaded him from digging further. The name Mazara was the only remembered remnant of his early childhood.

On August 31 of this year, Coady, who has an unlisted phone number, returned a call from a Ruth Misura in Arkansas, having been informed by the operator it was an emergency, little dreaming that he was returning a call from his real mother.

When Ruth correctly described his basic physical makeup, told him where he was born and that Catholic Charities had handled his adoption, capping her narrative by identifying him as David Misura, a name so close to the one that had nagged him through his childhood, Coady knew that he and his mother had found each other after 35 years.

The two met face to face for the first time on the very next weekend, spending an emotion-packed few days together.

Coady found out that he and his younger brother Tony had been turned over to Catholic Charities in Peoria for temporary care by his mother who was divorced and couldn't afford to take care of all five of her children. She kept the two older boys and a girl with her and visited Coady and Tony on weekends until one weekend she found out that she had signed papers authorizing their adoption, thinking they only authorized the boys' temporary care.

The boys were adopted by two families and Ruth lost contact. When she was financially on her feet again, she began her search for them.

In her search for David, she had only the name Coady (wrong spelling) and Ivesdale for leads. Ruth took to checking every phone book in the Ivesdale area looking for a Coady family.

Finally she was informed through the post office that a family with that name had two adopted sons, one living in Colorado, the other's address was unknown.

Contacting the Coady in Colorado, she learned that his step-brother, who lived in Twin Lakes, Wis., had been born on the same day as David Misura.

Finding Coady's phone in Twin Lakes unlisted, she used the emergency ploy and the rest is Misura-Coady family history.

Coady's adoptive parents have since died, making it easier for Coady, who was devoted to them, to accept Ruth, who fits into her maternal slot with ease.

Coady will not be spending Christmas with his mother this year, since she is in St. John's Hospital in Springfield, Mo., recovering from a kneecap operation, in an attempt to relieve her rheumatoid arthritis.

The family is in constant contact with her, 10 page letters to Coady and her grandchildren being the norm.

Joe (David) and his wife spent Christmas Eve with part of his new found family though since they had plans to spend time with his older brother Mickey and his family, meeting at O'Hare Field in Chicago.

Mickey, 43, who lives in Elkhart, Indiana came to Twin Lakes for a reunion with his brother in September.

Coady has also talked to his other two brothers and sister on the phone, making plans for a big family reunion this coming fall at the World's Fair in Knoxville, Tenn., a central meeting point for the Misura family, now spread all over the United States.

Mike, 38, lives with his family in Baberton, Ohio; Sharon, 40, lives in Sun Valley, Calif. and Rich (Tony), 36, is single, living in Waterloo, Iowa.

Haley's check bounces for country music bash

Clement Haley, 35, of Antioch, was arrested by the Lake County Sheriff's Dept. Dec. 18 on a deceptive practice charge for allegedly writing a bad check for $2,460 to the department and then failing to make payment on the check over a three-month period.

The check was for payment for security provided by the sheriff's department at an August 2 country and western music concert held by SOF Concert Productions of which Haley is a promoter.

According to Lake County Sheriff's Dept. James Rowley, the charge is a class four felony, which means Haley could face between one and three years imprisonment in a state penitentiary and/or payment of up to a $10,000 fine.

Rowley said he has been notified by a company which provided refreshments at the same concert that Haley also wrote them a bad check for approximately $800 and has failed to make payment on that amount.

Rowley said, "There are at least a half dozen programs that he would be eligible for as a first offender before he would go to prison. It (the charge) is not a violent crime, so it is highly doubtful that he would go to prison."

Haley had originally contracted to hire 12 deputies to provide security at the concert, however, only nine deputies were available at the time to work the concert. Since the $2,460 check was for payment for 12 deputies, the sheriff's department held the check, requesting that Haley issue another for the correct amount of $1,845.

According to Rowley, Haley did not take action for over one month, so the department finally put the check through, writing a check to Haley for the $615 difference. Haley's check bounced.

Haley contacted the department, returning the $615 check, stating that he would send the department a certified check for the payment, which he never did.

Haley was released from the Lake County Jail Dec. 18 after his brother, William Haley of Antioch, posted 10 percent of a $5,000 bond.

A preliminary hearing has been set for 9 a.m. Monday, Jan. 4. Should Haley pay the amount of the bad check before the court date, it would still be up to the state's attorney to decide if he wishes to continue prosecution on the case.

Due to heavy rain the day of the concert, turnout at the concert was much less than expected. It was speculated that SOF Productions lost money on the venture.

EASING EXTRACTIONS

Having a tooth extracted? Here's how you can minimize the discomfort that may follow.

BLEEDING: Bite on gauze for 30 to 40 minutes. You can change the gauze then and leave it in place longer if you wish. Biting on a moistened tea bag will also help stop bleeding. Some slight oozing may continue for up to 24 hours, but most bleeding should stop within a half hour. For persistent bleeding, always check back with your dentist.

SWELLING: Place an ice pack on the face over the extraction site, 15 minutes on, then 15 minutes off, for two to four hours, to minimize swelling.

PAIN: Take pain medications only if needed, and only as your dentist directs. Don't rinse the mouth or do anything to disturb the extraction site for 24 hours. After 24 hours, you can rinse with warm salt water, 1/2 teaspoon to the glass.

Dr. Sven will be happy to answer individual questions about dental problems. Address personal inquiries to his office.

Add another count in marijuana bust

Two Wisconsin men previously charged with possession of a controlled substance have been charged with another count of possession of a controlled substance, according to Antioch Police Lt. Tom Fisher.

Robert Jungkuns, 21, Kenosha, Wis., and Todd Newman, 20, Kansasville, Wis., were charged with possession of a white powdery substance called methylenedioxymphetamine on Dec. 18 following their court appearance on a previous marijuana charge.

The two were arrested Nov. 13 by Antioch Police Sgt. Charles Watkins after he found marijuana and open liquor in Newman's vehicle in which Jungkuns was a passenger. Although the white substance was found at that time, the police were uncertain as to what it was and sent it to the Lake County Crime Lab for identification.

After being notified that it was a controlled substance, Fisher obtained warrants for the new charges, arresting the men after their Dec. 18 court date.

Following the arrest, three containers of marijuana were found in Jungkuns's pocket, and he has again been cited for possession of marijuana.

A court date for the two will be set.

Antioch may be site of big scam

Antioch Police Lt. Tom Fisher warns Antioch residents that they may have been deceived by a woman posing as a Service Merchandise representative selling discount toys through catalogues.

Fisher said authorities in Palos Heights, Alsip and Blue Island have arrested a woman who has allegedly held "Tupperware-like" parties to sell toys at half price which customers choose out of a catalogue.

The woman purportedly asks for half of the price of the toys, with the other half to be paid upon delivery of the toys, which she does not deliver.

Fisher emphasized that it is not yet known whether this woman operated in Antioch, although he has had several complaints indicating she may have.

He asks any village residents who believe they may have purchased toys through this woman to call the Antioch Police Dept. so he can make a police report on the matter.

Only village residents are to call the department. Residents outside the village should contact their local authorities.

Cubicles will be set-up for certain tests to be performed. Some of the tests to be done will be blood-typing, height, weight, visual acuity, and blood pressure.

A dietician, physical therapist, and a physician specialist in electrocardiology will be available to discuss their professions. A display with

INSIGHT INTO EYESIGHT

Dr. R. A. Sona, OPTOMETRIST

THE NEARSIGHTED EYE

What happens when one eye or both eyes are nearsighted? The nearsighted eye focuses on an object too soon. The image is sharp when it enters the cornea, the "window of the eye". But it gets out of focus by the time it reaches the retina. This is the innermost lining of the eye that sends the image to the brain.

There are several causes of nearsightedness. One is an eyeball that is longer than normal, measured from the front of the eye back to the where the retina is located. It is too long to hold an image in focus by the time it reaches the retina.

Or the problem may be the light-bending ability of the eye. It may do too good a job at bending the light, causing the image to go out of focus by the focus.

Nothing can be done to shorten the distance between the front and the back of the eyeball. Nothing can be done about its light-bending ability. That's the way you were born. But an eye examination will show how these problems can be corrected by wearing properly fitted glasses.

A to Z Rental may have to close

The new year may find the closing of Antioch's A to Z Rental, according to its owner, if a site cannot be found where the business can be relocated.

Owner Frank Curtis said that he had hoped to construct a new building with expanded parking area on a three-acre parcel in unincorporated Antioch Township, south of Antioch.

The Lake County Board, however, rejected a request to rezone the parcel from residential to a commercial zoning, which would allow for the construction.

Curtis is discussing the option of suing the Lake County Board for the rezoning with his attorneys, but at present has made no decision.

Curtis said suing the board would be contingent on court costs and how much time it would take to get the matter through the courts.

He is presently looking at other sites, but has not found one he deems suitable for his business.

A number of owners of nearby summer homes made legal objections to the board on the rezoning at the Dec. 9 board meeting, as they did a year ago when Curtis requested a similar rezoning on a smaller portion of the same parcel.

The Time Machine

When I think about it 1982, year of hope?

by GLORIA DAVIS

1982 is bursting on the scene with most people looking ahead with optimism to the spring break in the economy predicted by many economists.

A lot of us have made New Year's resolutions aimed at improving ourselves and our lives.

The Christmas season of brotherly love is over and the majority of people who rushed to donate toys for needy children and canned goods for poor families are settling back into the struggle of carving out their own existence, feeling that the big chunk of their taxes that goes towards welfare recipients and the myriad of other people that are supported by government funding will suffice as their brotherly contribution for the year's remainder.

And it's not easy surviving financially in an area where one of the biggest employers is American Motors in Kenosha, the city that has just been named number one in the country in unemployment.

In 1982 the world will be watching Poland, cognisant for the first time since the concentration camps of WW2 and the revolt in Hungary, that there are millions of oppressed people behind the Iron Curtain struggling for the basic right of freedom.

Are we or are we not our brother's keeper? In the particular case of the Polish revolt, the United States, more than any other country, may be culpable because its President, Franklin Roosevelt acted in the county's behalf at the infamous Yalta conference in 1945 when millions of Europeans became the pawns of the Allied victory and were sold down the Volga River, dammed behind the Iron Curtain.

Since the days of the citizens' revolt against the Bastille are gone forever, the metal of the pick-axe and pitchfork no match for the armour-clad tank, these people may have lost their freedom forever.

As in the case of the Hungarian revolt, even the powerful U.S.A. is reticent to step in, fearing the start of a nuclear war.

What is the debt that we owe these millions and their children? Do we sit back in our three bedroom ranch homes with our television sets and our dishwashers and watch these victims of Yalta die in the coal mines of Poland in a quest for the rights we take for granted?

At what risk do we rectify the wrongs of 1945? I haven't the answer any more than anyone else seems to. But I do know this, I do feel an a basic human obligation towards these people and I hope an pray a righteous answer is found early in the New Year.

Letter to the Editor Youth drinking draws poetry from teen side of issue

Editor:

I read the story about the 17 year old in the car accident, written by "whoever" in last week's edition. I don't normally write letters to papers, but the recent controversy over teenagers and drinking over the Illinois/Wisconsin border is really making me sick.

When parents, and the over-21's act like fools and make mistakes because of alcohol, it's overlooked and nobody makes a big deal out of it. But when an 18 year old does it, people say they can't handle themselves, and treat them like children.

Well it seems to me, that 18 years olds are granted responsibilities for their actions with the right to vote and are dealt with like adults when they get in trouble, by sending them to adult jails, instead of juvenile homes.

They are given these rights, yet when it comes to adult socializing, you treat them irresponsibly.

It's true there are some people that drink and drive (and I underline the word people, not children), but there are also a few people I know in their 40's, that turn mystomach.

The teens that have been killed coming home from Wisconsin bars in the last two years are basically from further away in Illinois than Antioch. The problems seems to be in the travel distance.

Maybe, instead of raising the law in Wisconsin, we should be fighting to lower the drinking age in Illinois. After all, it's Illinois residents that are complaining. I know I would rather go down the block to a tavern, then travel five miles so I won't get arrested for doing something illegal.

Seems to me, and a lot of other people, that it makes logical sense to let the people

She woke in the hospital, very alone,
Hoping this was heaven in disguise,
But knowing what happend,
Then being told-
Had not come as such a surprise.

The doctor was subtle,
"I'm sorry for you,
A drunk driver took your friend's life"
But she had remained badly tattered and torn
From fun on a Saturday night.

The emotional agony, sent tingles down her spine
To the foot, that she no longer had.
She couldn't decide to be sad or angry,
And that made the hurt
Hurt so bad.

She had heard so much bad
About teens mixed with drinking
After all, that's how newspapers sold.
But she learned that the stranger
With the death on his conscience,
Was a drunk who was 30 years old.

Her biggest pain was just living.
Why had she been spared?
Had God reached down to take her
And missed?
But, she could count her blessing, she wasn't dead,
Yet worse, was alive
Like this:

over 18 drink in Illinois, then to have people in 60 mile radius travel to great crowds to the Wisconsin bars.

If you think I'm wrong let me know. I've been up there with them, and I know. There are about a dozen other ideas I have thought of, that seems to make sense, that nobody else has even brought up.

Anyway, I hope you like my poem. Published or not, makes little if any difference to me. I just thought it was about time that somebody stood up for the other side.

Best Friends And Saturday Night

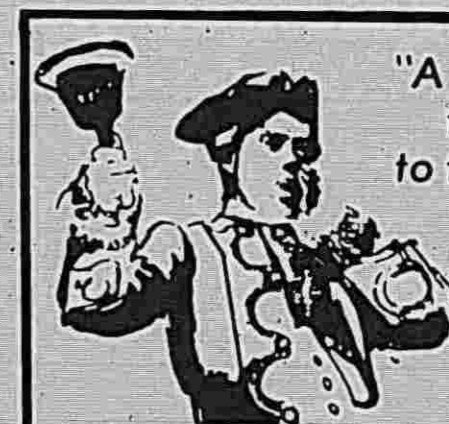

Saturday night with nothing to do,
Yet one thought was on everyone's mind.
A party for hundreds
Where teenagers are legal,
A block across the state line.

She didn't have to be rich, or go very far
To chase all her troubles away
Where the cost of the drinks
And the hangover tomorrow
Is the only price to pay.

That wasn't the case on the short drive home.
They were drunk,
But they sure had fun.
The two of them knew the hour was late
But their night had just begun.

But suddenly, over the hill,
A stranger from the dark, in their lane.
A screech of the breaks and smash of the glass
And the darkness
That was filled with pain

After hundreds of seconds, which now was forever,
The real which hand seemes like her dreams,
The multitude of metal
The silence of death
The feeling of what terrified means.

Township can deduct payments

Antioch Township passed a resolution which will allow its payments to the Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund (IMRF) to be tax deductible, according to Jim Fields, township supervisor.

The township pays a certain amount for each of its employees to belong to the IMRF.

By making the payments tax deductible, the township will lower its taxes. Although the resolution was passed Dec. 10, it will go into effect in February of next year.

In other action, the township board:

Appointed Russ Lasco to a four year term on the Antioch Township Fire Board.

Approved payment of $270 to send two Antioch Community High School students to the Snowball alcohol and drug program to be held this summer at Illinois Beach State Lodge, Zion. The students attend the program and then hold classes of their own next fall, teaching students their age what they learned in a peer group situation (no teachers are present).

American West topic of CLC nature film

Naturalist Allen King will present his film, Romance of the West, at 2 p.m. on Jan. 7 at the College of Lake County.

The screening is sponsored by the CLC Environmental Conservation Organization and the program board. The film lecture is part of the audubon wildlife film series and will be held in the Blue Lecture Hall in the main building on the Grayslake campus.

Tickets are $1 for adults, 50 cents for CLC students and children from five to 11 years of age, children under five years old will be admitted free.

The Lewis and Clark expedition of 1804 opened the doors of the American west to mountain men, pioneers, wagon trains and cowboys.

In Romance of the West King traces the route of the first western migration from the mouth of the Missouri River at St. Louis to the mouth of the Columbia River on the Pacific Coast. The land of the Sioux, Mandan, Cheyenne and Crow Indians held an abundance of resources that were a magnet for settlers.

care where it went, as long as it does not go to Antioch.

She said, "We may be in the midst of stench in a couple of years. I hope we act now to protect our town in the future. One hundred acres is a lot of dump. Is Antioch going to grow by a dump? Will it be the dumping site of Lake County?"

Trustee Rod White pointed out to the other board members that they do not yet know what Waste Management wants. He said he will wait to make a decision when they come before the plan commission with a proposal.

Trustee Edgar Simonsen questioned why the village should be "the dumping ground of the area."

Trustee William Seemann said, "I think we're talking ourselves out of things. When it's time to negotiate, you lay the cards on the table and negotiate. Then you vote the way your conscience tells you."

Village resident Marilyn Shineflug expressed concerns to the board about what type of material would be allowed to be dumped at the proposed site.

Clark said under the village's special use permit governing landfills, only "trash, refuse, and garbage" would be allowed at the site.

The 30-acre HOD landfill presently in the village, however, is termed a sanitary landfill and allows for dumping of special wastes.

According to Shineflug, special wastes includes "any industrial process waste, pollution control waste or hazardous waste" (if there is less than 50 parts per million of a hazardous waste in a substance, it can be considered a special waste).

Toft said, "The site they (Waste Management) are looking at is far better than the site they're presently on," adding that the basin of the landfill would be layered with clay so that leakage into ground water could not occur.

Shineflug said according to an EPA official, the clay liner sometimes causes a bath tub effect. Heavy rains can fill up the lined area and run off and leakage of materials can occur.

Toft said the board will not discuss the proposed landfill until later in January. The board did pass an ordinance Dec. 21 giving the village board approval/denial responsibility in regards to landfills.

The proposed landfill would call for annexation and rezoning of 60 acres outside Antioch and 10 acres in the village. Almost all the land is presently zoned agricultural. The village is requested to rezone the entire 70 acres M-2 manufacturing and issue a special use permit for the landfill.

The site is located adjacent to a 30-acre HOD landfill (HOD is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Waste Management) north of Rte. 173.

Team effort leads Sequoit cagers

Antioch's varsity boys basketball team continued its turnaround as the Sequoits won their fourth straight game with a 67-60 upset of host Rockford Boylan Dec. 26 in the first round of the Rockford Holiday Classic Tournament.

The victory puts the Sequoits in the quarterfinals of the championship bracket at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Dec. 29, against Rockford Auburn.

Auburn was a 64-57 first round winner over Dixon.

Should the Sequoits defeat Auburn, they would advance to the semifinals at 5:30 p.m.

on Wednesday, Dec. 30.

The quarterfinal win would also assure the Sequoits of an appearance in Rockford's Metro Center where the third place game will be played at 1:30 p.m. on Thursday, Dec. 31, with the championship game at 3.

"It was a great team effort," Roger Andrews, Antioch head coach commented on the Sequoits upsetting of number two seeded Boylan.

The team play was exemplified by Antioch's balanced scoring.

Bob Gatti and Mike Gofron each scored 14 points, with Steve Sheedlo getting 13 as the third double figure scorer.

Gordon Nasenbeny and Tom Anderson each scored nine points to add to the balance.

Andrews was also pleased with the play of the other three Sequoits who saw action, Dennis Cardiff, Bob Herich and Brad Herbst.

"The big key was defense," Andrews said. "They played some great defense in holding Boylan's leading scorer at 6-8 to 10 points. They frustrated him so much that he fouled out."

"The kids really did a great job with team defense," he said. "Anytime I called on anybody off the bench, they did a great job, too."

Auburn is expected to be a formidable opponent for the Sequoits, as long as they can keep the tempo down.

"They're not very big, but they're quick and fast," An-draws explained. "We hope to keep the tempo at ours."

The victory upped Antioch's overall record to 4-5.

Sequoit girls advance

Antioch's varsity girls basketball team easily moved into the quarterfinals of the championship bracket at the North Chicago Community High School Holiday Tournament with a 71-28 thrashing of Sacred Heart of Mary from Rolling Meadows.

The Sequoits win on Dec. 26 moved them into quarterfinal action against Waukegan West scheduled for 5 p.m. on Monday, Dec. 28.

The semifinals of the 16 team tournament are scheduled for Tuesday evening, Dec. 29, with the championship, third place and consolation title games slated for Wednesday, Dec. 30.

In the win over Sacred Heart, the Sequoits used a full-court press in the first quarter to easily open an advantage they never relinquished.

"We jumped out and never had to look back," said Lorraine Dresser, Antioch head coach.

Tracy Manuel led Antioch scorers with 23 points, while Renee Tell had 21 and Susan Fritz chipped in 11.

"They all played well," Dresser added.

Going into the quarterfinal game, Antioch's record was 3-1 overall.

Antioch Grade power to Skidmore?

The Antioch Grade School board is expected to act at its January meeting on the possibility of giving the superintendent the power to add staff to relieve overcrowded classrooms.

Approval of the new policy would give Supt. Donald Skidmore the power to relieve overcrowding by transfer of students or by adding personnel for grades kindergarten through two.

Dr. Skidmore said it has been the board's practice since 1978 when he joined the district to add an aide automatically whenever classroom size is over 30 students, but that each time an aide must be added, the matter must be brought before the board, rather than the administration being able to deal with the problem without a board vote.

The board discussed and will probably approve a policy which will follow the listed procedure.

All classes, kindergarten through two, of the same grade are to be equally loaded by the principal. Two classes totaling 50 students would have 25 students each.

If an overloaded class (a class of 30 or more students) is unique to one school in a grade and the situation could be relieved by busing children to another elementary school with lower enrollment in the grade, busing would be considered as the first method to relieve overloaded classes.

If busing is not practical or possible, then the next option would be to automatically add an aide to an overloaded class. Children from a less crowded class would be added to the class with the aide to allow for a more equal teacher/student ratio.

Dr. Skidmore said it is not the board's intention to separate one or two children from the rest of their class, should it become overloaded. Volunteers to switch classes would be asked for, after which it would be up to Dr. Skidmore to decide which pupil or pupils would be transferred.

He said the likelihood that one class would be far advanced from another class is highly remote.

He added that should a transfer of personnel alleviate an overload problem, that route would be the first taken.

In other action, the board: Voted to return to use of the fluid process ditto copier machine as the four Savin Photo Copy machines purchased over two years ago at a cost of $15,032 have been overused and are fast wearing out. Dr. Skidmore said the board first estimated production of some 6,000 to 8,000 copies in a 20 work day month and instead are running between 15,000 and 25,000. This is almost three times the rated capacity of the Savin machines and is causing the machines to wear out prematurely. At present, it costs the district $1,000 or more per machine annually for maintenance of the Savins and Savin copies cost between one and one and a half cents a copy more than the ditto to produce. The Savin machines produce a much clearer copy.

Voted to modify the alarm system at Oakland Grade School with a zone panel and photo cells at a cost of $2,207. The present system, which was 10 years old, has been the source of frequent false alarms for the past few years.

Voted to meet on Jan. 11 to discuss personnel and program reductions for 1982-83. Due to federal and state assistance reductions, the district funding will be cut.

Dr. Skidmore does not foresee any major reductions in any of the school's programs and no raise in taxes.
